

The 2019 Fall Book List

dane copeland | college.u

Books are the bees which carry the quickening pollen from one to another mind.

- James Russell Lowell -

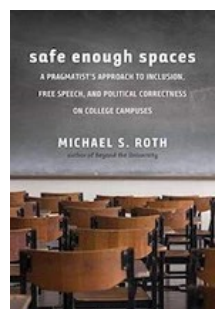

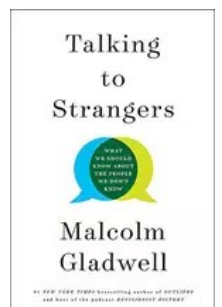

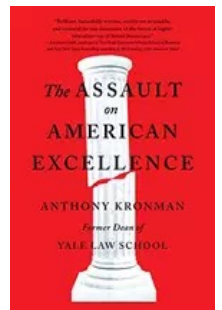

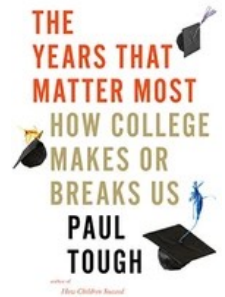

It's barely a blink before Labor Day and not quite Fall, yet this Fall's crop of books offers too many amazing choices to wait until the official start of Fall on September 23rd to share the 2019 college.u Fall book list. With so many newly released books, the bigger question is where to begin. Why wait? Dive in.

Take a bite out of some these compelling and thought provoking reads. Have one to share? Email me at dane@collegeu.solutions

Looking for a local reading experience? There are many to choose from, but make sure to add the Litquake, San Francisco's Literary Festival, 20th Anniversary October 10-19, 2019 to your calendar.

- The Years That Matter Most: How College Makes or Breaks Us
- Indebted: How Families Make College Work at Any Cost
- The Assault on American Excellence
- The Truth about College Admission: A Family Guide to Getting In and Staying Together
- Hey AdmissionsMom: Real Talk from Reddit
- Talking to Strangers: What We Should Know about the People We Don't Know
- Safe Enough Spaces: A Pragmatist's Approach to Inclusion, Free Speech,

and Political Correctness on College Campuses

- 17 New Books to Watch for in September
- Common Reads: First-Year Experience
- What Freshmen Are Reading
- Princeton First Year Common Reading List 2019
- Duke Summer Reading
- Pomona College Book Club
- Wesleyan University, First Year Matters
- Penguin Common Reading
- Simon and Shuster Freshman Year Reading
- Books for the First-Year Experience from Macmillan

Subscribe today and stay up-to-date on college trends and news!

Have more questions or looking for more support? Email me at dane@collegeu.solutions

Like what you're reading? Feel free to share and follow college.u on Twitter and Instagram.

